INDEX TO VOL. LXVIII.

Books and Book Collectors;—Books on a March; Paris bookstalls; Old Books in Dublin; moral influences of bibliography; Rousseau's Periwinkle; pioneers of French poesie; a few Rare Sets, 397–408.

Boyne, The Campaign of the, 154.

Carols from the Cancioneros: By Denis Florence MacCarthy, 113, 433.

Celts and their Cyclopean Monuments, The, 42.

Cometh up as a Flower. Chaps. I. to V., 24; Chaps. VI. to VIII., 170; Chaps. IX. to XI., 259; Chaps. XII. to XV., 408; Chaps. XVI. and XVII., 581; Chaps. XVIII. to XXIV., 618–635.

Cowardice and Courage, 207.

Dramatic Censorship in Paris before the Revolution: Birth of the Censorship; moral restraint on the moralities; cradle of the French drama; censorship under the Valois; restraints on Molière and his fellow-labourers; dramatic doings during the Regency, 525–538.

Dufferin, Lord, on Ireland, 116.

Ecclesiastical Parties in Scotland, 426; The Free Church and political power, 428; Classification of the Churches, 429; definiteness of Scotch theology, 430; future of Scottish Ecclesiastical parties, 431; the union of the Non-Endowed Churches, 433.

"Ecce Homo," 75.

English Captain in Silesia, The.

First Siege of Limerick, The: James's Farewell; William in Dublin; how William enforced discipline; Douglas's slow journey to Athlone; Interior of the Irish Councils; The Parley before the Fight; Sarsfield; great feat; his career; a siege incident or two; how Limerick was assailed and defended; Tyrconnel's policy; The Rapparees, uncomfortable winter quarters, 1690; condition of Connaught, 547–560.

Fictile Art in England in the Eighteenth Century—Second Article, 591. Adoption of the Terra Ponderosa; Wedgwood; patient courage; incessant search for novel designs, 593; restoration of the antique; Etruria inaugurated; business at high tide, 595; Etruria in Dublin, 597; the Portland vase, 599.

Garrick—his Enemies and Friends, I., 434; II., 561; the Fribbleriad, 573, continued, 678.

Glastonbury Abbey, past and present: Monasticism in its vigour, 321.

Grand Tour, The: The City of the Czar; Russian meals; how the Czar employed his spare time; how the Czar's people fasted and prayed; Russian popes and their wives; Russian weddings; Russian character; instances of passive courage; good and bad points in the Czar; Peter's defects traced to their sources; his Prætorian guards; his chief favourite; Peter in hot water; in a den of tigers; the Czar as drill sergeant; Peter conquered at last, 308–321.

Holy Land, The, 443; Mr. Hepworth Dixon's two volumes reviewed, 447 et seq.; The Idyls of Bethlehem, 450; Mr. Dixon's picturesque passages, 455.

Irish Church, History of the, 231.

Irwin's (T. C.) Poems, 464.

Iphis, a Masque: By Mortimer Collins, 191.

Life and Letters of Rev. F. W. Robertson of Brighton, 660.

Mediæval Books and Hymns, 483; Scholasticism, 491; Monastic Writers of English History, 493; National Latin Literature, 495; The Hymnology of the Church, 497.

Miguel de Cervantes y Saavedra; Spain in the youth of Cervantes; Don Quixote's predecessors; youth of Cervantes; first plays at which he assisted; his first step in life; captivity in Algiers; his literary life; his labours and their requital; the closing scene—123–138.

Military Trials in Ireland, The, 107.

Missal-painting, 363; Art of Illuminating Manuscripts, 364; Duke of Devonshire's "Benedictional," finest specimen of English illumination, 366; The Schools of the Art, 369; Illuminators mentioned by Dante, 371; Effects of Iconoclasm, 379.

Never for Ever: A Tale. Chap. I., On the Cliffs; II., A Heroine; III., A Hero; IV., Lady Georgina at Home, 138–154. Chap. V., Cross Purposes; VI., Hopes and Fears; VII., A Yachting Party, 282–289. Chap. VIII., The Old, Old Story is told again; IX., A Confession; X., Captain Tom trots out the Mare;

XI., Troubled Waters, 380–396. Chap. XI. continued; XII., Light at Last; XIII., Guests at the Elms; XIV., Croquet, 507–525; Chap. XV., Light and Shade; XVI., The Why and the Wherefore; XVII., Day-Dreams; XVIII., Prayer and Praise, 643–660.

Nile Problem, The Solution of the, 101.

NUMBER FIVE BROOKE-STREET: By the Author of "Bella Donna" and "Never Forgotten." Book the First. Chaps. XVI. and XVII., 92; Chaps. XVIII. and XIX., 200; Chaps. XX. to XXII., 343; Chaps. XXIII. and XXIV., 457; Chaps. XXV. to XXVII., 438; Chaps. XXVIII. to XXX., 669.

Old Fireside Stories of Wexford, The, 699.

Paracelsus and the Revival of Science in the Sixteenth Century, 3.

Phases of Physiognomy, 466–480.

POETRY:—Ophelia's Stream, 354; M'Carthy's Carols from the Cancioneros, 433; Sonnets, 463; Irwin's Poems, reviewed, 464; Iphis, a Masque, by Mortimer Collins, 191; To a White Pomeranian Dog, 218; Philoctete's Farewell, 698.

REVIEWS:—"Essays on the Irish Church," by Clergymen of the Established Church in Ireland; "The Church in Ireland—Her History and Claims," by Archdeacon Wordsworth; "The Irish Church Establishment;" The Statements of Sir John Gray, M.P., examined by Dr. Alfred T. Lee, 231; "Ecce Homo," 75; "Contributions to an Inquiry into the State of Ireland," by Lord Dufferin, 116; "Prison Life of President Davis," by Lieutenant-Colonel John J. Craven, M.D.; "Life of Lieutenant-General Thomas J. Jackson" (Stonewall Jackson), by Professor R. L. Dabney, D.D., of Richmond; "President Johnson's Speeches;" Baker's "Albert N'Yanza," the great basin of the Nile, 101; "Irwin's Poems," 464; "The Holy Land," by W. Hepworth Dixon, 443; "Robertson's Life and Letters," by Brooke, 660.

Robertson of Brighton: his Life, Letters, Character as a Man, a Preacher, and a Theologian, reviewed, 660.

Satirical Laureate of the Sixteenth Century, The, 603.

SESSION OF 1866, The; advantages of the Democratic forces; gradual change of tone in the Press; growth of the Constitutional Opposition; the fall of the late Ministry; Lord Derby's policy in England and Ireland; sympathy of the Nation with it—355–360.

Silesia, The English Captain in, 182.

Southern States under Defeat, The, 635.

The Campaign of the Boyne, 154; The tragic result of a word too much, 156; James between his Master and his Servants, 157; Northern Affairs in 1690, 158; How Sir Cloudesley Shovel disturbed Dublin, 160; Sir Teague O'Regan and his Garrison, 160; Lookers-on are good gamesters, 163; The Eve of the Battle, 164; The Day at the Boyne, 167.

The Old Fireside Stories of Wexford: Hairy Rouchy; a Legend of Clever Women; The Twelve Wild Geese; The False Bride; The Three Gifts; The Maid in the Country under Ground, 699–716.

Timbuctoo, Part I., 219; Part II., 298.

Thomas King, the original Lord Ogleby and Sir Peter Neagle—a Dramatic Biography, 269; King's characters in Dublin, 271; Garrick and King, 272; King's "Olio," 275; His rule in Drury Lane, 276; His retirement, 281.

Voltaire and his Valet; a mysterious MS.; Voltaire and Madame du Chatelet; Madame du Chatelet at home; one of Voltaire's petty vengeances; how Richelieu's speech was spoiled; how Voltaire punished Madame Pompodour; Voltaire's tricks at Sans Souci; Voltaire in ill temper; noble card sharpers; no honour among learned thieves; death of Madame du Chatelet; how Voltaire was won from his grief; how Voltaire managed a roguish printer; the first representation of "Orestes;" a Sermon of Voltaire's; his kindness to literary aspirants; an Editor's moral mistakes, 243–259.

DUBLIN: Printed by ALEXANDER THOM, 87 & 88, Abbey-street.